Linda Friedlaender has been Curator of Education at the Yale Center for British Art since 1996. She is responsible for reaching out to both academic and public audiences through often requested programs that aim to facilitate active looking, careful observation, and identifying the difference between an objective viewing of a work of art and a subjective response to it. She has emphasized an interdisciplinary approach to teaching with collaborations with the Yale Schools of Medicine, Nursing, and Physician Associates, working with international executives at the Wharton School of Business, and the Biology Department at Mount Holyoke College. She has expanded the museum’s visitor base by offering programs for Chapel Haven, a residential school for socially and cognitively challenged adults, and children with Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families.

ACCREDITATION
The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT
The YSM medical education community requested seminars on enhancement of faculty teaching and curriculum writing.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:
• Experiencing that just because you have looked at something does not mean you have seen it
• Understanding that patience can be a teaching and learning strategy
• Deceleration can be a productive process in the learning experience

DESIGNATION STATEMENT
The Yale School of Medicine designates this educational activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

FACULTY DISCLOSURES
It is the policy of Yale School of Medicine, Continuing Medical Education, to ensure balance, independence, objectivity and scientific rigor in all its educational programs. All faculty participating as speakers in these programs are required to disclose any relevant financial relationship(s) they (or spouse or partner) have with a commercial interest that benefits the individual in any financial amount that has occurred within the past 12 months, and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of the commercial interests. The Center for Continuing Medical Education will ensure that any conflicts of interest are resolved before the educational activity occurs.

There is no corporate support for this activity.